Monthly Tips: June

- Although summer arrives late this month, it's still a really good time to plant. Many late season beauties are available now: dahlias, lilies, lisianthus and begonias are just a few. Landscape plants can also be added now, and this is the time to visit our garden centers to see summer blooming shrubs and trees.

- Be sure to water well this summer. Even though we think of Oregon as a rainy state, summers can be quite dry. Especially vulnerable are containers and new plantings. We have lots of ways to help you water effectively - drip irrigation kits, high quality hoses and sprinklers. And our landscaping division installs, repairs or upgrades home irrigation systems.

- While you're on our website, check out the many cool and informative web sites you might find helpful. From public gardens to how to preserve all those vegetables you're growing, it's all there.

- Most plants will benefit from feeding this month, especially containers, flowerbeds and vegetables. We recommend Dr. Earth organic fertilizers, available in granular or liquid form. Check with a Garden Center staff member to find out what's best for you.

- Summer can bring pests. While we offer standard chemical controls, we specialize in earth, people and pet friendly organic controls. These include live beneficial insects and products to control slugs, aphids, mites, mildews, caterpillars, root weevils, and budworms - the worms that eat all the buds off your beautiful petunias and geraniums.

Again, our staff gardeners are here to help solve any of your garden challenges.

- An inch or so of organic mulch will go a long way to suppress weeds and conserve water otherwise lost to evaporation.
- Spring flowering shrubs and vines, including rhododendrons, lilacs and spring blooming clematis can be pruned this month.

- To keep summer annuals blooming, pinch off spent flowers, water and FEED!
- Lastly, did you know we offer free, professional landscape design services at our garden centers? Planscaper® takes the guesswork out of planning your yard. You gather information about your site with our handy kit, and purchase a gift card that goes towards plants and supplies for your project. You'll meet with a designer, and they'll have a plan and plant list ready for you in about a week. Plus you'll receive 10% off your purchases, help picking out your plants and advice along the way. Everybody wins, and that's how we like to do business. Pick up a kit in the garden center or on our website, then call any of our stores to make an appointment with a Planscaper® Designer.
